This looks better than to center

The image is a screenshot of the Bricks Builder interface for a WordPress site. The main workspace shows a 'Social Proof' section with a light pink background. It contains a heading '10,000+ of our users love our products.' followed by a paragraph 'We only provide great products combined with excellent customer service. See what our satisfied customers are saying about our services.' To the right of the text are three stacked review cards, each showing five stars and a rating source: 'Rated 5 Stars in Reviews', 'Rated 5 Stars in Report Guru', and 'Rated 5 Stars in BestTech'. A 'gap--s' label is positioned below the reviews. The left sidebar contains panels for 'Block' (with a '2' indicator), 'CONTENT', 'STYLE', 'LAYOUT', 'SPACING' (Margin and Padding), 'SIZING' (Width, Height, etc.), 'POSITIONING' (Position, Top, Right, etc.), and 'MISC'. The right sidebar shows the 'Structure' panel with a '1' indicator, displaying a hierarchical tree of the page layout including 'Section', 'Container', 'Block', 'Heading', 'Basic Text', 'Rated Card', and 'Div'. At the bottom of the workspace, a dark notification bar states: 'There is an autosave more recent than the version you are currently viewing. PREVIEW AUTOSAVE X'. In the bottom right corner, there is a circular video inset showing a man with a beard, glasses, and a black cap, looking towards the left. The bottom of the image shows a video player control bar with a progress bar and a timestamp of 24:38.

We will do the complicated part (offset) later. It is always best to finish the whole module first and then do the fine work

We could just create the Cards now. However, for the sake of scalability, we need to make sure that the cards are also used somewhere else on the website and that there are more than the 3.

This is only possible with Custom Post Types!

We needed the same printed design as the one we had ordered a week prior. Not only did they find the original order, but we also received it in time. Excellent!
